

Andrew Caddell is the President of the Task Force on Linguistic Policy.

He has been active in Canadian public life for six decades as a reporter, ministerial advisor, public servant and diplomat. He began as a broadcast reporter in Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec City, Calgary, and St. John's. He served as a foreign service officer at Global Affairs Canada for 15 years, as an advisor to the Solicitor General of Canada, the Government of Ontario and with the Premier of Newfoundland and Labrador. He has written speeches for Ministers, Prime Ministers and the Governor General and was a key contributor to Canada's policy at the United Nations.

In addition to his role with the Task Force, Andrew is currently a columnist for the Hill Times newspaper in Ottawa, a frequent guest on CJAD's Big Five program, a volunteer with the YMCA's Camp Kanawana and a Town Councillor in the historic village of Kamouraska in the Lower Saint Lawrence. He is also the co-author, with Dave Stubbs, of "The Goal," a book about Canada's love for hockey.

Andrew is very proud of his heritage in Quebec, which goes back to 1640, as well as his roots in Scotland, Ireland and Barbados. He has cycled all of Canada, and last year played all six positions in his oldtimers hockey league.

Andrew is the father of three children, is married to Elaine Feldman and holds a Bachelor of Arts and a Master's in Journalism from Carleton University.